IMPORTANT PHONE NUMBERS

POLICE/FIRE/MEDICAL EMERGENCIES 911

NON-EMERGENCY POLICE & FIRE DEPARTMENT CONTACT NUMBERS

If you are unsure if your situation is an emergency, dial 911. Dispatchers will help determine if immediate action is needed.

Use your local non-emergency number when police assistance is not immediately needed. This may be because some time has elapsed since the incident occurred (such as a car prowler discovered the next morning) or if you are calling regarding a nuisance issue, such as graffiti.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

The East King County Resource Guide for Older Adults and Their Families is published as a community service by the City of Kirkland Senior Council, the City of Kirkland and EvergreenHealth.

Funding for this resource guide has been provided by The City of Kirkland and EvergreenHealth.

For additional copies of this guide, please contact: EvergreenHealth Community Healthcare Access Team at (425) 899-3200 or City of Kirkland at (425) 587-3307 or resourceguide@kirklandwa.gov.

Park Lane, Downtown Kirkland

Welcome to the East King County Resource Guide for Older Adults & Their Families

Inside you will find information on community resources regarding health, housing, transportation, recreation, emergency preparedness, and more; all specifically tailored for adults ages 50 and up.

The resources focus on organizations that serve residents of East King County. If services in a category are not offered on the Eastside, then organizations from outlying areas are included.

Members of the Kirkland Senior Council have made every effort to verify the information in this guide. However, organizations and missions can change. Please call or visit the organization website to verify that the services offered are what you are seeking.

Reading the Resource Guide

The Resource Guide lists organizations by category and sub-category. For example, a medical equipment supplier would be under the category “Health Care Services,” and sub-category “Medical Equipment Suppliers.” Individual agencies are listed alphabetically within each category.

At the beginning of each category, you will find important information including frequently used terms and a summary of the different types of options available. See the index for help locating a specific resource or organization.

Many organizations offer more than one service and are listed under multiple categories. A description of the types of services provided by each organization is included in the listing.

ADULT DAY PROGRAMS

Adult day centers offer opportunities for older adults with physical and cognitive disabilities to socialize outside of their homes and can provide daytime respite for caregivers.

Adult Day Program Terms To Know

Adult Day Care (ADC): A program which provides day time socialization, meals, and activities primarily for persons with physical and/or mental limitations. Participants return home each evening. Often used as respite for those caring for an older adult who cannot safely be left alone at home.

Adult Day Health (ADH): A program primarily for persons with physical and/or mental limitations which provides all the services of ADC and therapeutic activities facilitated by Registered Nurses, therapists, and other service providers.

Adult Day Programs

All facilities provide both Adult Day Care (ADC) and Adult Day Health (ADH) services unless otherwise indicated. Information on payment options is under "Financial Aid" on page 3.

Emergency Preparedness Tips for Older Adults

BUILD A KIT

A minimum 7-14 day supply of necessities is recommended. Store your kit in a dry, easy-to-access location. Smaller items can go in a backpack or to-go kit. Include the following:

- 1 gallon of water per person per day
- Non-perishable foods with a manual can opener
- Battery-powered radio and flashlights, with extra batteries stored in a water-proof bag
- Weather-appropriate clothing and blankets, rain ponchos
- Cash and change
- Personal hygiene supplies
- Medication. Talk to your health care provider(s) about ways to manage prescriptions and other medical needs during an emergency
- Copies of important documents such as driver's license, birth certificate, doctor's information, living will, and insurance information
- Duct tape, dust mask, and gloves
- First aid kit with extra medication, over-the-counter drugs, hearing-aid batteries, extra glasses or contact lenses, bandages, anti-bacterial ointment, gloves, and any other items to meet your needs
- Items for pets such as extra food, water, medication, and litter
- Photos of family members and pets

MAKE A PLAN

- Know where to go and who to call for help. The numbers on page 6 and on the front inside cover of this guide are good places to start. Coordinate with family and friends.
- Talk to your health care provider(s) about ways to manage prescriptions and other medical needs during an emergency.
- Write your plan down and keep it with your emergency kit.

BE READY

Store your emergency kit and plan in a safe place. Consider keeping one in your vehicle. Keep the numbers on page 6 and the inside cover of this guide easily accessible.

Medicare

Medicare is a federal health insurance program for people 65 and older and younger people with certain disabilities or ailments. It has four parts:

Part A provides coverage for hospital inpatient services, some short-stay nursing home care, hospice, and home health services. Enrollment for Part A occurs automatically for eligible individuals and there is no premium.

Part B covers doctor visits and outpatient services such as labs and x-rays. It requires enrollment and the monthly premium is usually deducted from the Social Security checks (for those receiving Social Security checks).

Part C is often referred to as Medicare Advantage Plans. These are private insurance plans for individuals enrolled in parts A and B which generally include vision, dental, hearing, and prescription drug coverage.

Part D provides partial coverage for prescriptions. Part D plans are sold by private insurance companies and the cost varies based on the plan selected. Qualifying low-income individuals can receive a subsidy. Apply for the subsidy through any Social Security office, contact information is below.

Medicare does not pay for custodial care (help with bathing, eating, taking medicine, or supervision), long-term care, dentures or dental care, eyeglasses, or hearing aids.

GOVERNMENT PROGRAMS

Federal Government

The United States Congress has two chambers, one called the Senate and the other called the House of Representatives (or “House” for short) which share the responsibilities of the legislative process to create federal statutory law.

They occupy opposite ends of the Capitol Building. Each state in the United States elects two senators, regardless of the state’s population.

Senators serve six-year terms with staggered elections. The United States is divided into 435 congressional districts, each with a population of about 760,000 individuals. Each district elects a representative to the House of Representatives for a two-year term. Representatives are also called congressmen/congresswomen. You can find contact information for all these elected officials through a simple web search at; <https://app.leg.wa.gov/districtfinder>. Additionally, most Congressional Representatives have field offices that can help you navigate federal programs such as Social Security, Medicare, and Veterans Affairs.

Washington State Government

The legislature of the state of Washington is made up of the House of Representatives and State Senate. There are 98 Representatives from 49 districts, each of which elects one Senator and two members of the House. All members of the House are elected to a two-year term without term limits and State Senators serve without term limits, though senators serve four-year terms.

Know Your Districts - It’s hard to engage your representatives if you don’t know who they are. The Washington State Legislature’s website allows you to identify your legislative representatives by entering your street address at <https://app.leg.wa.gov/districtfinder>.

Get Involved - By attending local Town Halls, informal incumbent and candidate neighborhood appearances you can become more informed and contribute to policy formation. Some legislators also have phone or online teletowns as well. All elected legislators and congressional district incumbents have their own webpages.

Municipal and County Government

Council Meetings - No matter where you live, your City and County Councils host public meetings regularly throughout the year. By attending these meetings, you can learn about your community and contribute to the formation of local policy.

Advisory Groups - The cities of Bellevue and Kirkland each have special advisory groups dedicated to issues affecting older adults: Bellevue Network on Aging and Kirkland Senior Council. Group members engage in community outreach and advocate for older adults at the city, state, and federal level. Membership is open to adults over 50 and those who work with older adults.

Washington Apple Health (Medicaid)

In Washington, Medicaid is called Washington Apple Health (WAH). It is a state-administered program that pays for medical care for qualifying low-income individuals. Coverage includes primary care, emergency visits, maternity services, pediatric care, dental services, vision care, prescription medications, and more. It can also cover care in a nursing home, adult family home, or in-home care. One program of WAH is the Community Options Program Entry System (COPES). COPES is a Washington State Medicaid (Apple Health) waiver program designed to enable individuals who require nursing home level care to receive that care in their home or alternative care environment, such as an assisted living residence. Contact DSHS to determine eligibility.

Preventing Falls

According to the CDC, one out of four older adults fall each year. The risk of falling can be reduced by taking a few simple measures:

- 1. Exercise: Exercising to improve balance and strength can reduce one's risk of falling. Tai Chi, Yoga, water aerobics, and other exercise programs are low impact exercise options offered at many senior and community centers.

For more information on preventing falls through exercise, see "Falling into Fitness" - a free video produced by the Kirkland Senior Council: www.youtube.com/watch?v=vqT2Z_ULBp0
- 2. Check the Side Effects of Medications: Discuss medications with your health care provider or pharmacist. Be aware of medications that may cause dizziness or sleepiness, which can contribute to falling.

3. Have Your Vision Checked: Poor vision can increase your chances of falling, so regular eye exams are one way of preventing falls.

4. Make Your Home Safer: Keep pathways and walkways clear. Repair broken or uneven steps. Small, unsecured rugs should be removed or taped down.

Bright lighting will help you see pathways and trip hazards better.

Keep items you use often in places you can reach without having to use a stool or bend down too low to reach.

Place grab bars and non-slip mats in the bathroom as well as adding hand rails on staircases or along hallways where there is nothing safe to grab on to.

Learn More About Preventing Falls:

Local Senior Centers offer fall prevention classes called "A Matter of Balance." See page 103 for more information.

This section contains information on the variety of senior housing options as well as information, placement, and moving services. See a list of housing terms and definitions below.

Housing Terms to Know

Adult Family Home (AFH): Adult family homes are residential homes licensed to care for up to six non-related residents. They provide room, meals, laundry, necessary supervision, and help with activities of daily living, personal care, and social services. Level of care varies by facility.

Assisted Living Facility (ALF): Assisted living facilities provide private apartments that are rented on a month-to-month basis. Usually included in the rent are meals, housekeeping, social activities, and transportation to medical appointments. Many residents choose to live independently, while others may require assistance with tasks such as bathing, dressing, taking medications, and dining. Additional fees are charged for each added service. Level of care varies by facility.

Continuing Care Retirement Community (CCRC): CCRCs offer varying levels of care on the same campus, allowing residents to shift to a new level of care as needed while living in the same community. They have all or some combination of independent apartment living, assisted living, memory care, long- or short-term skilled nursing, and rehabilitation. In addition to monthly rent, CCRCs charge one-time entrance fees dependent on the type of facility and the terms of the move-in contract.

Medicaid Spend Down: A Medicaid Spend Down is an option for people with disabilities and adults over age 65 who have too much income to qualify for Medicaid. The spend down occurs when they spend their excess income and become qualified for Medicaid.

Memory Care: Memory care facilities have long-term care options that are Sted for people experiencing all forms of dementia, typically Alzheimer's Disease.

Retirement/Independent Communities: Retirement/Independent communities are for people who can live independently but would like services such as planned activities, scheduled transportation, maintenance, and others to be conveniently available.

Skilled Nursing Facilities (SNF): Skilled nursing facilities, or nursing homes, provide 24-hour supervised nursing care, personal care, therapy, nutrition management, activities, social services, housing, meals, and laundry.

Adult Family Homes

Adult Family Homes are residential homes licensed to care for up to six non-related residents. They provide room, meals, laundry, necessary supervision and help with activities of daily living, personal care, and social services. Level of care varies by facility. For information, referral and placement assistance, see page 54 and 59.

There are hundreds of adult family homes on the Eastside. Washington State DSHS Aging and Long-term Support Administration maintains a list of all adult family homes, searchable by location and needs.

Legal Terms to Know

Advance Directive: A legal document which expresses a person's wishes regarding end of life care. There are two types of advance directives: health care directives (often called living wills) and durable powers of attorney for health care.

Health care directives/living wills are used to inform doctors and caregivers of individual preferences regarding medical interventions that would or would not be used to keep someone alive in the event of serious or critical injury, terminal illness, or incapacitation (i.e. coma, late-stage dementia).

Durable power of attorney for both health and mental health care, and finances designate a trusted friend or family member to act as a health care agent if a physician determines that an individual cannot make health decisions on their own. The designated person would be able to authorize, stop, or refuse medical treatment on their behalf.

Advance directive forms are available for free from the Washington State Medical Association's website: www.wsma.org/advance-directives. Consider your values and discuss the forms with your physician or attorney.

Conservatorship/Guardianship: Arrangement which gives a trusted friend or family member decision making authority over medical matters, financial matters, or both, if a judge determines that the individual is unable to make them on their own. The terms "conservatorship" and "guardianship" can be used interchangeably, but States use one or the other. In Washington "guardianship" is the most commonly used term.

Durable Power of Attorney for Finances: Legal document which gives a trusted friend or family member decision making authority over finances in the event that an individual is unable to manage them.

Physician Orders for Life-Sustaining Treatment (POLST) form: POLST form is a document that states the end-of-life care wishes of patients with a serious illness or injury, who may only expect to live up to a year. Others should use advance directives.

Probate: Court process which closes legal and financial matters after death. Wills can dictate the probate process.

Trust: Relationship in which a person (a 'trustee') is appointed by a third party such as a court to hold title to an asset for the use or benefit of someone who cannot manage the asset on their own (a beneficiary). One example may be a bank account which the trustee manages but may only use for the benefit of the beneficiary.

Preventing Fraud & Identity Theft

Consumers lose billions of dollars each year to fraud. People over age 50 account for over half of all victims according to a study by AARP. These con-artists use everyday tools -the mailbox, the phone and the internet to reach our pocketbooks. How do you fight back?

- Never give out personal information to anyone on the phone, through the mail, or over the internet. It is common for scammers to claim they are calling from the IRS, your credit card company, or a computer software, or security company. These companies will never call and ask for personal information over the phone, even if they are claiming to be giving you a “refund.”
- Make sure that all your phones are on the do not call register. Hang up on robocalls.
- Many seniors are disconnecting their land lines and only using their cellphones, which in many cases allows the owner to block phone numbers from scam callers (T-Mobile, Verizon and AT&T offer the block call feature). You can also turn to technology apps to block these calls.
- If you answer the call because the number looks familiar, it may be. Current technology allows these scam artists to “ghost” local phone numbers even though they may be calling from overseas.
- Never give your credit card number over the phone or on line to any charity you have not personally checked out. To check that a charity is a legitimate organization, contact the Secretary of State’s Division at (800) 332-4483 to make sure the organization is registered with the State.
- Never respond to an offer you do not understand. Always request the offer in writing and don’t let anyone pressure you into acting immediately. If the offer sounds too good to be true, it is.
- Never pay in advance for a promise. Someone may ask you to pay in advance for mortgage assistance or tax help. They may even say you have won a prize but first you must pay taxes or fees. If you do, they will probably take the money and disappear.
- Do not send money through wire transfers or pre-paid credit cards. Scammers often pretend to be a relative in urgent need of wire transfer. The caller usually requests that you keep their request a secret. DON’T. Hang up and contact another family member to work at verifying the request
- Shred personal information before throwing it away.
- Never hire door-to-door vendors including roofers, pavers, tree trimmers, or other services offering you a deal on home repairs. Tell them you will want to check with the Better Business Bureau before making a commitment.
- In Washington State, you can file a complaint with the State Attorney General’s Office via the website. The AG’s Office also suggests you file with the National Fraud Information Center, which gathers information about fraud to assist consumers.

Stay informed. Sign up for free scam alerts from the FTC at www.ftc.gov/scams.

Preventing Elder Abuse

Advice from DSHS, Adult Protective Services, and the King County Prosecuting Attorney's Office on protecting yourself and others from abuse.

Protect Yourself

- Stay busy and engaged in life. Don't let yourself become isolated from others or from your favorite activities.
- Cultivate a strong network of family and friends who are concerned about your well-being and do not let anyone prevent you from staying engaged. Abusers often prevent victims from using the telephone, leaving the house, seeing friends and family, or attending appointments alone. If living with another, have your own phone and send and open your own mail.
- Take good care of yourself. Older adults in declining health can become more vulnerable to abuse.
- Maintain regular medical and dental appointments and take care of your personal needs.
- Be aware of yourself, your surroundings, and your rights.
- If an adult relative wants to live with you, think it over carefully; especially if the individual is unemployed, has a history of violent behavior, substance abuse, or gambling. Assert your right to be treated with dignity and respect. Be clear about what you will and will not tolerate and set boundaries. Trust your instincts. If you need help, ask a trusted friend, family member, attorney, or physician.

Protect Others

Keep a watchful eye out for family, friends, and neighbors who may be vulnerable. Understand that abuse can happen to anyone and know what to look for.

Some red flags for abuse include:

- A new "best friend" in the adult's life who has taken an unusual interest in them
- Expensive purchases or gifting that is inconsistent with the adult's previous spending patterns
- Unmet commitments such as missed medical appointments and unpaid bills
- Decline in self-care or care of their home
- Lack of participation in usual activities, such as clubs, church, or social events
- Change in the adult's power of attorney or will without the knowledge of the family or long-time attorney

Speak up if you have concerns. Trust your instincts! Report any suspicions you have of abuse.

Call 911 and DSHS. When you call 911 a police officer will be dispatched to where you are calling from to take a report. Both of these calls trigger an investigation of the abuse or neglect.

DSHS Abuse Reporting Line: 1-866-ENDHARM (1-866-363-4276)

If you are concerned about someone's wellbeing, you may also call 911 to request a welfare check. Welfare checks are performed by police officers when someone, such as a friend or family member, suspects an individual may be in need of assistance. It is not uncommon for officers to perform welfare checks for older adults.

Spread the word. Share what you've learned.

The King County Prosecuting Attorney's Office is a resource for anyone with questions or concerns about elder abuse. Visit their website at www.kingcounty.gov/Prosecutor/elderabuse.aspx

These three medical conditions can mimic each other but are very different. All require very different treatments. This is a general overview of the three.

Delirium

Delirium is an acute, temporary condition triggered by infection, reaction to medication, organ failures, urinary tract infection, or other medical causes. Delirium symptoms can be dramatic and usually appear suddenly or over hours or days. They may also come and go.

Symptoms may include:

- Disorganized thoughts; difficulty focusing or following instructions
- Pronounced confusion or agitation, possibly worsening at night or upon waking
- Uncharacteristic aggression or argumentative behavior
- Hallucinations or other misinterpretations of the environment
- Delirium is an urgent medical situation that requires immediate attention

Depression

Depression is a common, treatable medical condition with symptoms that appear over weeks or months. Signs of depression are often dismissed as normal responses to illness or life changes associated with aging, even by healthcare providers. Recognizing the signs can help you know when to seek treatment, so you can begin to feel better.

Symptoms may be hard to describe but can include:

- Feelings of hopelessness, pessimism, guilt, worthlessness, or helplessness
- Irritability, restlessness, or fatigue
- Loss of interest in hobbies and activities; poor hygiene
- Difficulty concentrating, remembering details, or making decisions
- Insomnia or excessive sleeping
- Overeating or loss of appetite
- Thoughts of suicide or suicide attempts

Talk to your doctor if you think you may be experiencing depression.

Crisis Connections offers immediate, confidential support 24-hours a day: (866) 427-4747.

Dementia

Dementia is a progressive cognitive decline due to a brain disease or trauma such as Alzheimer’s, vascular disease, or traumatic brain injury. Symptoms appear gradually, over months or years. Recognizing Dementia is challenging because the symptoms can vary widely from person to person, come on gradually, and are difficult to accept. Early signs may include personality changes, trouble learning new tasks, difficulty finding the right words, or struggles with familiar tasks. Forgetfulness is not necessarily a sign of dementia. For example, it is normal to forget where your keys are, it is not normal to forget what keys are for. See your family doctor to eliminate delirium or depression. 24/7 Dementia Helpline: (800) 272-3900.

Volunteer Opportunities

There are many volunteer opportunities throughout our community and finding the perfect match is important. Before you begin your search, think about what you are interested in doing, your availability and commitment level, and the distance you are willing to travel. A good place to start is with a web search such as www.volunteermatch.org or www.idealists.org, or www.unitedway.org/get-involved/volunteer. Most of the non-profit agencies, hospitals and municipalities included in this Guide welcome the assistance of volunteers.

Join the Kirkland Senior Council!

The Kirkland Senior Council is dedicated to ensuring that Kirkland is a safe, vibrant community for residents age 50+. As an advisory group to the City Council, they advocate, support, shape, and create programs and services for older adults in the community.

KSC meetings are held on the second Tuesday of the month from 1:30 – 3:30 PM at the Peter Kirk Community Center, 352 Kirkland Ave in downtown Kirkland. Membership is open to adults both younger and older than age 50 who live, work, or serve the older adult population in Kirkland.
